DEFENDANT'S PRETRIAL MEMORANDUM

A. Reason for not filing a joint Pretrial Memorandum as required by the Rules:

Johnson's counsel has no interest in following the rules and cooperating with Frei in filing a joint memorandum. The reason is that this will make it more difficult, if not impossible, for Frei to file a joint memorandum. Johnson's counsel proved this fact to be true in the past on several occasions. It is what she does and she does it with impunity.

B. Summary of Defendant and Plaintiff in Counterclaim:

Frei was running an interactive blog at the time, the Holland Blog at www.01521.com.

After being heavily criticized on Frei's blog, Johnson choose to ice-fish just a few feet from Frei's residence on February 19, 2011 and it came to an altercation after Frei, late in the afternoon, stepped onto the ice to tell Johnson and his friends, who were drinking heavily all day, that he would not tolerate anybody trespassing onto his property. One of the group urinated on Frei's property just minutes earlier.

Johnson denied he committed any of the acts against Frei but was found guilty on Frei's counterclaims during trial for defamation (In his statement to the Police, Johnson accused Frei of having made death threats towards him, and that he, Johnson, would now fear for his life; Johnson accused another outspoken resident of Holland, James LaMountain, of the same crime before and that individual was not as fortunate as Frei, as he had no recording to prove Johnson to be lying to the Police. LaMountain was convicted of the crime of threatening to commit a crime).

Johnson was also found guilty of attempted intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress. All three claims were actionable through the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act, MCRA, .

Consequently the jury found Johnson's conduct a violation of Frei's civil rights, and found that his conduct was extreme and outrageous, and that it was beyond the bounds of decency and intolerable in a civilized society.

Frei's claim for Abuse of Process was dismissed on Johnson's Motion for a Directed Verdict.

The Appeals Court found error by the District Court's decision to allow Johnson's Motion (at the time of the trial, it was not known that the members of the Board of Selectmen ("BOS"), secretly paid for Johnson's legal representation, and that Johnson's attorney, Tani Sapirstein, accepted the payments in violation of the State Ethics Law. This fact came to light after a lengthy investigation by the State Ethics Commission.

The State Ethics Commission's Public Education Letter ("PEL") also brought to light the true motive behind Johnson's civil suit against Frei. Johnson's civil suit against Frei was "aimed" to "deter" and "discourage" Frei from filing petitions with the government. Petitioning the government is one of the five constitutional rights explicitly named in the First Amendment.
